Biographical note

Andrew Delbridge Osborn (1902-1997)

Andrew Osborn was born in Australia in 1902 and emigrated to the United States in 1928. His intellectual and innovative approach was valued at the New York Public Library, the United Nations, and as Deputy Librarian at Harvard University Library from 1942-58. He obtained higher degrees from Columbia University and the University of Southern California.

In 1959 Osborn returned to Australia and became the University Librarian at Sydney University on E.V. Steele's retirement. Osborn helped plan the new Fisher Library and was instrumental in increasing the size of the Library's collection from 400,000 to 750,000 items. He resigned in 1962 when appointed Professor of Librarianship at the University of Pittsburgh (1962-66). From 1966 to 1970 he was founder and dean of the library school at the University of Western Ontario. He influenced the education of library students for many years who found his book and articles on cataloguing listed in their required readings.

In 1986, he was awarded an Order of Australia for his dedication to obtaining resources for Australian libraries, and an honorary doctorate from the University of Sydney in 1978 in recognition of his work and contribution to the development of Australian University libraries.
